Continuation of 11. does NOT place the application in condition for allowance because: Applicant argues on pg. 4 that Liao teaches in paragraph [0004] that the formation of Mg alloy cathodes requires two separate evaporation sources and points out that a single source would be less complicated but does not teach how to accomplish this. However, Liao does make the suggestion to use a single evaporation source over two evaporation sources. It would have been well within the knowledge for one of ordinary skill in the art to have modified a two source system to a one source system. Therefore, the suggestion of Liao would have made it obvious to have placed the evaporation materials of Hosokawa into a single source.

Applicant argues that the Mg/Ag or Mg/Al alloys described in Liao cannot be effectively used in a single evaporation source or boat since the difference between vapor pressure for either of these combinations are more than 5 orders of magnitude. Although the placement of such materials would not have been effective, there is no suggestion that it would been inoperable.
